Focus Was on Refinery In Night Out, Fall Trip

The fall trip and the Members and Ladies Night Out—not held every year because of lack of interest—were a refined (whoops, refinery!!) success at Madison County sites for GGRCC compatriots, spouses and guests in October.

Credit for planning and conducting the events goes to Timothy S. Raymer, a long-time officer of the chapter.

Attendance was about 40 at the Members and Ladies Night Out Oct. 13 at Ravenelli's Restaurant, Granite. Speaker, anticipating the later fall trip, was Keesha L. Dhanene, an information coordinator for Conoco

Phillips Corporation's giant refinery in Wood-River-Hartford.

She discussed operations at the refinery and its importance in providing oil-derived products to the nation and the world. GGRCC members and several spouses got further insights on the refinery's operation in the Fall Trip Oct. 20 to the facility's museum, which originally was founded by Shell Oil Company when it operated the refinery.

On the same trip, participants had an opportunity to ascend the recently completed twin towers at the Lewis and Clark Historic Site

The Meaning of the Star-Spangled Banner

By Harry K. Windland

[I have spoken a number of times about the history of our National Anthem. Here is a complete version of all four verses with remarks I have made. Like so many of the songs and poems we have memorized and recited hundreds of times, we all too often sing our National Anthem without thinking about what its words really mean. Few people know the Star Spangled Banner has four verses because rarely are the last three sung. We all know the first verse, but usually don't recognize it as a question—"Oh! Say can you see " Is the flag still there? Does it still wave?]

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thru the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

[The second stanza answers the question with the words "Now it catches a gleam of the morning's first beam . . ."]

On the shore, dimly seen through the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines in the stream:
'Tis the star-spangled banner! Oh long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

[The third verse reflects pride and defiance by taunting the British with mockery of their threat to take away our freedom and country.]

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion,
A home and a country should leave us no more!
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution.
No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight, or the gloom of the grave:
And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

[The final stanza expresses thankfulness, appeals for forgiveness and avows justification for the national struggle.]

Oh! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand
Between their loved home and the war's desolation!
Blest with victory and peace, may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust."
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!
